

Extended service warranty

Who better than the original equipment manufacturer to provide service on your equipment?

Trane offers protection for the life of your investment

Regular service on your HVAC equipment can ensure that your investment continues to operate at optimal conditions. As your original equipment manufacturer, we can provide the best service on your Trane equipment. With years of HVAC service experience, our commitment to providing the highest level of protection for your building is unsurpassed.

Trane offers the added protection of the Extended Service Warranty program. Packaged with a Trane service agreement, this program provides inspections, maintenance, and repair services that are backed by a factory-issued Extended Warranty.

Added security for your investment

Extended Service Warranty gives your business added security by protecting your investment from financial risks involved with operating mechanical equipment. This program maintains your Trane equipment and can help protect you from added parts, labor, and refrigerant costs.

The service agreement and warranty offering provides parts, labor, and refrigerant coverage for manufacturer's defects even after the standard warranty expires. Performing regular maintenance on your equipment can protect your investment from unexpected failures and can aid in predicting upcoming service expenses related to your HVAC system.

Planning for the unexpected is difficult, but with an Extended Service Warranty, Trane will be there as your HVAC trusted advisor. Trane stands behind our products and we can work with you for the life of your equipment to help you achieve peak operating efficiency from your equipment.

Extended service warranty applications

Avoid costly, inconvenient repairs and unexpected downtime by conducting routine inspections and maintenance. Performing recommended maintenance allows minor problems to be identified and corrected before they become a catastrophic failure.

With your purchase of Trane equipment, consider the additional protection of an Extended Service Warranty.

1st year coverage for labor and refrigerant

This provides added protection during the standard warranty to cover labor and refrigerant.

- Runs in conjunction with your standard warranty
- Purchase within 60 days of equipment startup

2nd year and beyond

This extends your parts, labor, and refrigerant coverage past the expiration of the standard equipment warranty.

- Begins after standard equipment warranty expires
- May be purchased up to six months after expiration of standard warranty
- Available for some equipment up to 10 years 6 months from shipment

To learn more about the Trane Extended Service Warranty Program, contact your local Trane commercial sales office to discuss your equipment's warranty and service options.

Trane service technicians are prepared to handle all of your HVAC maintenance and repair needs. The added protection of an ESW ensures that Trane service will support your building well after equipment startup.
