

TRANE®

Rental Services for Warehouses

Fast and Reliable Temporary Cooling Solutions

Ambient air control in warehouses

Effective control of temperature and humidity levels in warehouses is vital to ensure appropriate storage conditions and a comfortable working environment. Most warehoused goods such as electronics, paper or perishables need to be stored in controlled ambient conditions. For pharmaceutical goods, it is crucial that the warehouse is closely monitored. Uncontrolled variations in humidity and temperature may have serious consequences on medicines, rendering them ineffective or potentially unsafe.

A comprehensive approach to warehouse air conditioning can improve staff comfort, while optimizing storage conditions to fulfill your operational objectives.

A tailored solution to match your warehouse needs

Trane engineers will work with your operations team to perform an in-depth assessment of your unique cooling requirements. Equipment is carefully selected to deliver the necessary cooling capacity. The delivery and installation of rental units are scheduled to integrate seamlessly into your warehouse operation.

Why Trane Rental Services?

- A large, young and well maintained fleet of units
